Investor Alert No. 5
Evolving Investment Scams and Tactics – Stay Vigilant!

The Trinidad and Tobago Securities and Exchange Commission (“TTSEC”) would like to remind the public to stay cautious and informed in light of an ongoing rise in investment scams. This is our fifth official alert on this issue, following earlier updates.

While we appreciate the public’s attention to past warnings, we continue to see scams becoming more sophisticated. We encourage everyone to remain vigilant, especially as fraudsters introduce new tactics to gain people’s trust.

Here are the warning signs and evolving scam tactics, you should be aware of, to avoid becoming a victim:

- Fake Profiles: Scammers use social media accounts with stolen or generic photos, minimal information, and vague content to gain your trust.
- Unrealistic Returns: Be wary of promises such as: “Earn $30,150 on a $2,000 investment in 2 hours.” These are designed to lure you in with impossible returns.
- Contact via WhatsApp/Telegram: After responding to an ad or post, scammers shift the conversation to private messaging apps, where impersonators posing as “investment representatives” give false assurances.
- Urgent Deposit Requests: Scammers send bank account details and pressure you to deposit funds quickly to “secure your spot” or to access higher returns.
- Withdrawal Fees and Delays: They may initially claim that there are no fees involved and that withdrawals are easy and fast.
- Fake Investment Platforms: After depositing funds, you may be given access to a fabricated investment platform, which shows exaggerated account balances to deceive you into thinking you’ve made significant profits.
- Impersonation of Registered Entities: Fraudsters may falsely claim to represent a legitimate institution, brokerage, or regulator and may misuse official logos, company names, possess fake certification and licenses to appear credible
- Use of Artificial Intelligence (AI): AI may be used to create convincing fake profiles of high-ranking public officials or institutions. These can include fake video messages or images impersonating public officials or from supposed leaders. Always verify directly with the named individual.

- Unverified Digital Sources: Messages which originate from obscure, anonymous sources.
- Withdrawal Fees and Delays: Victims are often asked to pay excessive fees - sometimes over TT$1,000 - before “profits” can be released. This is usually followed by additional demands for more payments.
- Requests for Personal Data: Never provide sensitive information such as ID card images, credit card details, passwords, or bank PINs to unknown individuals.
- Use of Money Transfer Services: Scammers may request funds through third-party money transfer services or ask you to transfer received funds to other accounts, which could implicate money laundering.
- Fake Testimonials and Social Proof: Fraudsters often circulate videos or social media comments from supposed investors, claiming huge returns. These are usually staged or scripted.
- Persistent Pressure and Harassment: Scammers use multiple numbers and repeated messages or calls to push you to comply with their instructions.
- Disappearing Act: Once doubts arise or you request a refund, communication may drop off gradually and then stop entirely.

Protect Yourself. Before investing, individuals should:

- Be skeptical of unsolicited investment opportunities, especially on social media or messaging apps.
- Verify that the individual or entity and its promoters are registered with the TTSEC at <https://www.ttsec.org.tt/registration/registered-companies-individuals-and-securities/>
- Exercise caution with unsolicited online investment offers.
- Conduct independent due diligence to avoid falling victim to scams.
- Report scams, tips, or suspicious activities to marketcomplaints@ttsec.org.tt

If the entity is not registered under the Securities Act Chapter 83:02, you risk losing your entire investment.

Stay informed. Stay alert. Protect your money.
